PENN

SUMMER

2012

Pre-College Program

July 1 – August 11, 2012

The Pre-College Program is designed for rising juniors and seniors interested in the intellectual challenge and rigorous pace of a true undergraduate experience. Students enroll in one or two summer courses alongside Penn undergraduates. Our program offers more than thirty undergraduate courses in exciting disciplines taught by Penn faculty, staff, and visiting scholars. Successful completion of courses will result in official academic credits and a Penn transcript. Academic advising, access to university learning resources, and college admission workshops are also provided.

Pre-College Students choose one of two challenging curricula:

- One college-credit course and one non-credit course designed to complement the academic experience
- Two college-credit courses

A complete listing of Summer 2012 undergraduate course offerings is now available. Please note, some courses may have educational prerequisites or require placement testing.

College Credit Courses

Students select their college credit courses in consultation with the academic director, though registration in a desired course is not guaranteed. For complete course descriptions, including prerequisites and meeting times. Students must register, add, and drop courses through the Summer High School Programs office.

Students earn one course unit (1 CU, or the equivalent of 3 college credit hours) for each course taken. Biology 101 counts as 1.5 CUs due to the rigorous laboratory component. Summer courses are typically smaller in size and taught by Penn faculty, staff, and visiting scholars. Most classes assign homework, research papers, midterms, and/or finals. College credit classes meet 2 to 5 times weekly, Monday through Friday. Textbooks and additional course materials may be required for class.

Penn Summer for International High School Students

For the past decade, high school students from around the world have enjoyed their first taste of college life by attending one of Penn's Summer High School Programs. Whether you're interested in earning academic credit at an Ivy League university, gaining hands-on lab experience at a world-class research institution, or improving your English skills through intensive language immersion, we're sure you'll find a program that's just right for you!

TOEFL Requirements

TOEFL scores are required for international applicants whose native language is not English. Students who attend an English-medium high school may substitute PSAT scores for TOEFL scores.
